

The use of cell phones on aircraft should continue to be banned.
I am a flight attendant for a major airline.

First and most importantly, it poses a safety issue in the event of verbal instructions to evacuate.

Secondly, with the current policy of using cell phones on the ground, we have people who are yelling and talking so loud that they are disruptive to other passengers. Air rage is real. There is no where for people to move to to avoid someone who is using her/his cell phone. Unlike other public places, the confined environment of the aircraft presents unique psychological issue. Please support the continued banning of cell phone during flight.
